"Über den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Marius Lüscher ? his alias Freddy Perez ? spent more than two years in Los Angeles, further developing his abstract painting. On his walks through the city, he encountered and consequently photographed unexpected urban situations that inspired his notions of abstraction. He created several thousand photographs, which he now publishes under the pseudonym Freddy Perez. He presents this supposed city of glamour in a sober and crystalclear way, without a typological approach or pursuing a particular motive. Nondescript places along the eternally long boulevards drew his interest. Rather than searching for particular images on his city walks, he encountered interesting constellations based on his movement in the city and his gaze through the camera. Different elements in the rectangle of the viewfinder ? sky, architecture, cars, writings, plants ? combine to form a two-dimensional whole, where foreground and background fuse into a certain homogenous artificiality. Image composition is a core aspect of the series. The pictures are not cropped, but reflect exactly all that could be seen in the viewfinder. Freddy Perez simply wants to show everything with his photography, and explain nothing. Still, his intent is not objectivity, but rather a personal look through the camera - revealing the diversity that defines the beauty of this city."
