"Pressestimmen The beauty of this text is it demystifies the process of constructing a qualitative dissertation methodology. This is the big hurdle a student must cross to make it to degree completion...Overall the text is a solid all-in-one qualitative research manual for students in applied and social behavioral science fields. And with more pressure being put on institutions to increase their graduation rates, this text could very well help more students earn their doctorate degrees.--Stephanie A. Bluestein Über den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Nathan Durdella, Ph.D., is an associate professor in the Department of Educational Leadership and Policy Studies at California State University, Northridge, where he advises master's and doctoral students, supervises doctoral student dissertation studies, and teaches graduate-level courses in action research, grant writing, academic planning, and qualitative research design and methods. Durdella holds a bachelor's degree in sociology and political science, a master's degree in Latin American studies, a master's degree in education, and a doctoral degree in education--all from the University of California, Los Angeles."
