"Synopsis Explores the reasons why after-death communications (ADCs) occur and how they help the bereaved. Is ADC authentic communication, or simply the stress of bereavement? How it can help one establish a new relationship with the deceased? And how should we talk to children who report the experience? Über den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Louis E. LaGrand, Ph.D., is Distinguished Service Professor Emeritus at the State University of New York and Adjunct Professor of Health Careers at the Eastern Campus of Suffolk Community College in Riverhead, New York. He is a certified grief counselor, the author of five books, and gives workshops on death-related topics in schools, hospices, and health agencies."
