"Pressestimmen 'The meticulous food still lifes of Raphaelle Peale positively sizzle with subliminal sexuality in Nemerov's deeply psychological analysis. Highly recommended.'--'Minneapolis Star-Tribune Synopsis The American painter Raphaelle Peale (1774-1825) left a legacy of vibrantly beautiful still lifes depicting objects such as fruit, vegetables, and meat. In this lively and literate study, the first booklength exploration of the artist, Alexander Nemerov presents a radical new reading of these paintings focusing on the uncanny quality of Raphaelle's still-life objects. Nemerov argues that the physical presence of these objects is not strictly their own but that of the artist's body. This imagery of embodiment, Nemerov argues, relates deeply to Raphaelle's own time. The Body of Raphaelle Peale focuses on not just Raphaelle's paintings but also the visual and intellectual culture of early-nineteenth-century Philadelphia, to which these works intimately relate. More broadly, the book presents a reading of romanticism in the American visual arts. Above all, it is an argument about selfhood in Raphaelle's era. Raphaelle's focus - in paintings both playful and morbid - was the pleasures and horrors of being a mere body, of being less than a self. Nemerov's primary source of evidence in this study is Raphaelle's art itself. After considering its theoretical and historical implications, he returns to the images, deftly guiding us to a fresh understanding of these remarkable paintings. Nemerov's formal analysis is infused with a sophisticated awareness of interdisciplinary issues, and he gracefully balances the formal, the theoretical, and the historical throughout his narrative. This beautifully illustrated study is sure to stimulate renewed appreciation of an exceptional American artist. Alle Produktbeschreibungen"

Raphaelle Peale at the Detroit Institute of Arts, Michigan. Still life with wine glass, 1818. Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco, New Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, New National Gallery of Art, Washington D.C. New still life boss, Raphaelle Peale's famous still life embeds a dialogue with his artist father, one of the gems of the Nelson Atkins American Painting Collection. It is Raphaelle Peale's Venus rising from the sea, a deception often acknowledged as the artist's most important work. It was a natural choice for inclusion in the Rubens Peale with a Geranium, an 1801 oil painting by American artist Rembrandt Peale. It is a portrait of Peale's younger brother, Rubens, who helped run the family museums and raised plants and animals. It is an early painting by Rembrandt Peale painted whe.
