"Pressestimmen ?All the characters in Thomas Mann?s masterpiece come considerably closer to speaking English in John E. Woods?s version . . . Woods captures perfectly the irony and humor.? ?New York Times Book Review ?[Woods?s translation] succeeds in capturing the beautiful cadence of [Mann?s] ironically elegant prose.? ?Washington Post Book World ?[The Magic Mountain] is one of those works that changed the shape and possibilities of European literature. It is a masterwork, unlike any other. It is also, if we learn to read it on its own terms, a delight, comic and profound, a new form of language, a new way of seeing.? ?from the new Introduction by A. S. Byatt Klappentext Mann began working on The Magic Mountain in 1912, following a few weeks' visit to a sanatorium in Switzerland. Twelve years later the novel that had begun as a short story appeared in two long volumes. The war that had postponed the book's completion had 'incalculably enriched its content.' Now it was a massive meditation on 'the inner significance of an epoch, the pre-war period of European history.' It was an immense international success from the time of its publication. The Magic Mountain is the story of an unassuming, undistinguished young engineer named Hans Castorp who sits on the balcony of a sanatorium, wrapped in his camel's hair blanket, thermometer in his mouth, naively but earnestly pondering the meaning of life, time, and his love for the beautiful Frau Chauchat. Among the other characters on this Germanic ship of fools are the malapropian Frau Stohr; Hofrat Behrens, the head doctor, and his hearty but sick-looking sidekick, Dr. Krokowski; Ludovico Settembrini, the enlightened humanist; Han's noble cousin Joachim Ziemssen; and Hermine Kleefeld, who, with her whistling pneumothorax, is the pride of the Half-Lung Club. In this community organization completely in reference to disease, Hans Castorp achieves a kind of transcendence unimaginable in the world of the 'flatlands' below him. Alle Produktbeschreibungen"
