This generalised guide culminates experience coming from four generations of off-road drivers, using a large variety of vehicles in the mountainous areas of Greece. It's the result of literally millions of kilometres, starting from the late 1920s and carrying on to modern times. Going from the slow, less capable cars of the past to today's 4X4s. Any experienced overlander may tell you that this subject is next to impossible to cover in a single book, let alone in a quick, easy & dirty guide. The author's purpose is to provide enough basic rules to cover a sufficient number of bases – so that any novice may be able to begin their first off-road excursions staying as safe as possible, and living to tell the story, without any drama, whether it be financial or due to a severe accident. A few words about the author Raxis Epitropou MEng was born in Komotini, Greece in 1977. He studied Automotive Engineering Design in Coventry University, UK – graduated in 2001. Currently the owner of a driving school in Komotini, he spends his free time overlanding, riding Enduro motorcycles, practising Mixed Martial Arts and writing articles on offroad driving, modern self-defence & the use of firearms. A quick, easy & dirty guide to Off Road driving is his second book.
