"Pressestimmen 'Eagleton...is a powerful and engaging writer, perhaps no more so than when, with bursts of comic vituperation which recall Kenneth Tynan at his best, he is seeing off those he regards as second-rate opponents. But probably more relevant is the sense among many readers and critics that Eagleton is providing a welcome antidote to the rather simple-minded conception of religion that Dawkins and Hitchens selected for their demolition jobs. He is rather like a wise old schoolmaster explaining to two eager young students that the significance of 'Hamlet' is hardly exhausted by describing it as 'a revenge drama'.--Laurie Taylor, 'New Humanist Magazine'--Laurie Taylor'New Humanist Magazine' (07/01/2009)'[B]etter than any previous book of its kind.'--James Wood, 'The New Yorker'--James Wood'The New Yorker' (08/31/2009)'Eagleton writes with lucidity, wit and panache and, though an atheist himself, successfully shreds what the conflated Ditchkins say in their books.'--Piers Paul Read'Spectator' (11/14/2009)'A boisterous polemic ... Eagleton yields to none in his denunciation of institutional Christianity and a punitive, vengeful God as a betrayal of Jesus's championing of the poor and rejected.'--Jonathan Benthall'Times Literary Supplement' (12/11/2009)'Brisk, funny, and challenging One of the most fascinating, most original and prickliest works of philosophy to emerge from the post-9/11 era.'--Andrew O'Hehir, 'Salon'--Andrew O'Hehir'Salon' (04/01/2009)'Eagleton's book is a brisk and welcome contribution to the ongoing discussion about the place of religion in the world today. Readers will find plenty to challenge them in this brief snapshot of today's "God Debate."'-->Association for Mormon Letters'--Blair Dee Hodges 'Association for Mormon Letters "'Eagleton is one of Britain's leading literary critics and writes with verve and humour." -- Paul Goodliff, Baptist Times--Paul Goodliff'Baptist Times' (06/18/2010)'Eagleton is an unconventional and entertaining thinker. His book is as much about capitalism, politics, and literary criticism as it is about religion.' --Kurt Kleiner, 'The Globe and Mail'--Kurt Kleiner 'The Globe and Mail "Erudite, but often entertaining volume.' --Rich Barlow, 'Boston Globe'--Rich Barlow 'Boston Globe 'Eagleton's book 'meets the challenge of the New Atheists with a sense of playfulness (for example, he melds the two leading lights of the movement, Richard Dawkins and Christopher Hitchens, into one signifier, 'Ditchkins'), and a dogged refusal to let Oxbridge-trained rhetoric stand in for actual reason. The result is a work bathed in wit and punctuated with soaring prose that, while sympathetic to religious truth-claims, ends with a flourish on his Marxist hopes for an embrace of 'tragic humanism.'--Lyndon Shakespeare, 'Anglican Theological Review'--Lyndon Shakespeare 'Anglican Theological Review ' Über den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Terry Eagleton is Distinguished Professor of English Literature at the University of Lancaster, England, and Professor of Cultural Theory at the National University of Ireland, Galway. He is also Distinguished Visiting Professor at the University of Notre Dame. Eagleton is also the author of On Evil, published by Yale University Press."
