"Pressestimmen 'A fair-minded, deeply researched account of how a school of thought developed and wielded influence . . . quite well done, and full of fascinating stories.'--Justin Fox, New York Times Book Review'A masterly history.'--George Melloan, Wall Street Journal'The book is a fair-minded, deeply researched account of how a school of thought developed and wielded influence'-- Justin Fox, International New York Times'The best overall history of the Austrian school.'--Tyler Cowen, Marginal Revolution 'This is a vital book for our times. Janek Wasserman's study is learned and accessible, demystifying and elegant; above all, it corrects popular misconceptions about the origins and legacies of Austrian economics.'--Jeremy Adelman, Princeton University'Over more than a hundred years, the Austrian School of Economics was born, emigrated, split, revived and transformed. Janek Wasserman has done the impossible, producing a readable guide to the whole story while shirking none of the school's complexity. A serious achievement.'--Quinn Slobodian, author of Globalists: The End of Empire and the Birth of Neoliberalism'Janek Wasserman deftly traces the filiation of Austrian economic ideas from the café culture of pre-war Vienna to the online universe of the contemporary alt-right. The result is a stimulating history of economists such as Mises and Hayek, and their influence on our era. Well-written, compelling, and entirely accessible, this book deserves a broad readership.'--Robert Leonard, Université du Québec à Montréal Über den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Janek Wasserman is associate professor at the University of Alabama. He is the author of Black Vienna: The Radical Right in the Red City, 1918?1938."
