"Pressestimmen A Civil War enthusiast since his childhood, photographer Michael Falco set out on a four-year, battlefield-to-battlefield odyssey coinciding with the war's 150th anniversary. The result is the wonderfully haunting Echoes of the Civil War: Capturing Battlefields through a Pinhole Camera (Countryman Press, $35, 288 pages, ISBN 9781581573800). 'Soldiers' journals and memoirs describe the battlefields as dream-like,' Falco writes, 'and that is how they appear through the patient eye of the pinhole camera.' While exploring major battle sites from Bull Run to Appomattox, Falco became not just a chronicler but a re-enactor himself, dressing in period clothing as he set up his primitive wooden box camera, using modern film but no lens, viewfinder or shutter. Along with these evocative photos, Falco interweaves past and present through his narrative as he 'tumbled down the rabbit hole of Civil War history.' Echoes of the Civil War will hold great appeal for history and photography buffs alike.--Bookpage Über den Autor und weitere Mitwirkende Michael Falco is an award-winning photojournalist who lives and works in New York City. A regular contributor to The New York Times and National Geographic, Falco's previous books include Along Martin Luther King: Travels on Black America's Main Street. Many of his images are on permanent display in the 9/11 Memorial Museum, and his panoramic work documenting the Fresh Kills Landfill is in the permanent collection of the Museum of Modern Art."
